THURSDAY, MARCH 24 1737.

91° 544.

HERE is in Thucydides a Funeral Oration made by Pericles, in Honour of those that were slain in the Peloponnesian War; as it gives some Account of the State of Athens, at that Time, I thought an Extract of such Parts of it, as relate to that Matter, would be no disagreeable Entertainment to the Reader; the Whole being too long to be comprised within the Compass of this Paper.

Our Ancestors (says he) have delivered this Region to their Posterity in a State of Liberty, for which all imaginable Esteem and Reverence ought to be paid to their Memories. Our Fathers still deserve higher Honours; for they have by their Valour and Industry, extended our Dominions, and transmitted down to us the Fruit of their Labours. Many of us also, who are here present, and yet in the Vigour of our Age, have enlarged the Bounds, and augmented the Glory of our Country, whereby we are now become a great and potent State. I will pass over the illustrious Actions that have been performed both by our Ancestors and ourselves, in order to accomplish these Things. For none of you can be Strangers to them. But by what Institutions we arrived at this; by what Form of Government, and by what Means we have advanced the State to this Greatness, I will lay before you; because I think these are Matters proper to be known by all.

We have a Form of Government, not founded upon the Model of any of our neighbouring States; but rather a Pattern for them to copy after; in which, tho' there is an Equality amongst all Men in Controversies of Law, and Matters of private Right, yet in the Publick Charges and Dignities of the State, one Man is preferred to another, according to his different Merit and Abilities; and we are not only free in the Administration of the State, but also in our common Intercourses with one another, in which every Man is at full Liberty to follow his own Humour and Inclination, without Rebate or Censure. While we do no Injury to others, but keep within the Bounds prescribed us by the Laws, the State takes no Notice of our private Affairs and domestick Economy, but we may chuse such a Manner of Life as is most agreeable to ourselves, without Fear or Offence. We have Instituted Games and Sacrifices to unbend our Minds in the Intervals of Business, and to fill up our Leisure Hours with proper and suitable Recreations. The Wealth and Grandeur of our State, all Things, from all Parts of the World, are brought up, and we enjoy the Product of the remote Nations, in as much Plenty as we do our own. We subdue our Enemies in War, and do not rely upon Stratagem and Deceit, but upon our Bravery and Courage in Action. The Lacedemonians are inured to their Youth, to excessive Toils and infinite Fatigues, in order to make them bold, and patient of Labour, and the fatigues of War; and yet we live in so much Ease and Indulgence, are as active and Active, and look Danger in the Face with as much Intrepidity as they do; and this we are from natural, and not from artificial and doctrinal Valour. When we engage in any Enterprize, we do not faint before hand with the Apprehension of Danger, but behave as Gallantly, as those that for ever toiling and mortifying themselves, and to debar themselves of all the Comforts of Life, in order to enable them to perform Things, which it is so easily done, without laying any Restraint upon Pleasures.

The Freedom of our Government, allows every Man to speak his Thoughts upon all Subjects, tho' the greatest Importance; and this Liberty is extended in such an extent, that even common Labourers and Artificers, converse as freely upon allick Matters, as upon their own private Affairs; often, of all Ranks and Degrees, in their common Conversation, enter into all the Policies of Government and Transactions of State; and it is become a Reproach, and a certain Mark of Ignorance and Folly, for any Man to seem ignorant of these Matters.

We have opened to ourselves, by our Bravery and Conduct, all Seas and Lands, and set up eternal Monuments on all Sides, of the Evil we have done our Enemies, and the Good we have done our Friends: We are Brave, without being Rash; Wise and Learned, without being Indolent and Inactive; we are Bold and Enterprising, and yet we never enter upon Action, without considering maturely all its Circumstances, and looking Attentively into all its Consequences. We esteem Deliberation and Advice, to be so far from an Obstacle and Hindrance to great and noble Actions, that on the contrary, we think they are absolutely necessary to further and promote them; and that wise Counsels, and cautious Measures, are the surest Means to secure Success: When Designs are not well concerted, the Execution must be defective; some indeed, are of Opinion, that Ignorance makes Men Brave, and Consideration, Cowards; but such an Imputation can never affect us, for we dare undertake as much as any, tho' we always consider well of what we undertake; and that is the truest Valour, which, tho' it is perfectly sensible of the Danger, is yet not to be diverted from the Design.

Such is the City, for which these brave Men, whose Obsequies we are now solemnizing, have valiantly died. Such our Laws and Constitution, for which none who hear me, if the same Necessity should require, would regret to die: Such is the Government that draws upon us the Envy of all our Neighbours, and which is not to be equalled for Wealth, for Greatness and Freedom, by any other State.

Petersburg, Feb. 26.

As yet this Court has not appointed any Plenipotentiaries to treat with those said to have been named by the Porte, of an Accommodation; and it is probable, her Czarish Majesty will wait, before she takes that Step, till the Grand Vizier informs her directly, or desires his Britannick Majesty's or the Emperor's Ambassador to declare to this Court, in the Name of the Porte, that they have actually named Plenipotentiaries to treat with those the Czaria shall think proper to appoint. Besides, it is believed this Ministry think the Season of the Year too far advanced, to expect a Peace with the Turks without making another Campaign. On the 23d Instant her Czarish Majesty was pleased to make Rear Admiral Bredal a Vice Admiral: He arrived lately here from Alosp, and is to return very soon again to that Place.

Madrid, March 18. On Tuesday the 12th Instant Benjamin Keene, Esq; his Britannick Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary, gave an Entertainment at Fuencaral, a Village between this Town and the Pardo, in Celebration of her Britannick Majesty's Birth-day. The Infante Don Phelipe is appointed by his Catholick Majesty Grand Admiral of Spain, and of all its Maritime Forces; and the Duke de Montemar is named Minister of War, which Employment has been vacant since the Death of the late M. Patinho.

Venna, March 18. We are assured that Count Fuencaral, the Sicilian Minister here, has demanded the second Archduches for Don Carlos, and that he has made this Demand in separate and formal Visits last Week to all the Imperial Ministers. Count Sinzendorff has himself told it plainly to Count Tarouca: And Count Fuencaral is said to have accompanied that Demand with very advantageous Offers. Count Plettenberg, who was upon the Point of setting out from hence for his Embassy at Rome, died last Night, after an Illness of Eight Days.

Edinburgh, March 17. Tuesday last the continued Trial of John Caldwall came on in the High Court of Justiciary, for robbing the Glasgow Mail, and murdering the Post Boy: But his Council having all along pleaded Phrenzy in his behalf, as he himself did by his Behaviour before the Lords; their Lordships justly weighing the Consequences of this arduous Case, put off the Trial till June, and in the mean Time further Scrutiny is to be made, whether this Madness is real, or most artfully affected. One Thing is certain, that he cut off a Piece of his Ear, and presented it to his Agent as his Fees.

Last Night some Thieves carried off the whole Silver Plate, &c. from the House of Mrs. Herdman, Vintner in Writers Court.

Nottingham, March 17. On Tuesday last our Assizes ended here: At the Town-Hall John Turner received Sentence of Death for stealing a Mare, but since reprieved; Jonathan Roberts, for robbing his Master, Mr. Wheldon; Hannah Dawson, for robbing Mr. Eggington, and Richard Rimmington, for robbing the Drawer at the Blackmoor's Head, are ordered for Transportation. At the County Hall, John Wright, for Theft, was ordered for Transportation. Thomas Hodkins, and John Bateman, for a Misdemeanor, for uttering false Money, knowing it to be such, to stand in the Pillory on Saturday, to suffer six Months Imprisonment, and to give Security for their good Behaviour for three Years. Two were Acquitted.

Last Monday came on here before Mr. Justice Probyn, the Cause which has been so long in Dispute, between that Corporation, Plaintiffs, and the Boat Company of Derby, Defendant, about an Imposition of Under Bridge Tolls; when after a Hearing of six Hours, the Jury having no Regard to their Disfranchised Aldermen's Evidences, (they being Parties concerned) very justly gave their Verdict in Favour of the Derby Boat Company.

Durham, March 18. Last Saturday in the Afternoon Sir Robert Eden, Bart. arrived in this City from the University of Oxford; he was welcom'd to Town by the Ringing of Bells and a vast Concourse of People, who crowded not only then, but on Sunday at the Abby, to see him.

Hereford, March 19. Last Tuesday the Assizes ended here, when the two following Persons received Sentence of Death, viz. William Sutor for the Murder of his Wife, and John Griffiths for Burglary; the latter is since reprieved for Transportation.

Thomas Personage, for a Misdemeanor, in endeavouring to file the Evidences against the above-nam'd Sutor, by offering a considerable Reward for their Non-Appearance, was fined 5 Marks, and ordered to be imprisoned until the next Assizes, and afterwards to give Security for his good Behaviour for 12 Months.

The five following were burnt in the Hand, viz. Thomas Brown for stealing Sheep, John Hall for stealing Money, John Powell for stealing Hogs, George Tyler for stealing the Money out of the Poor's Box of St. Peter's Church, and Elizabeth Amir for ste. ling a Pair of Stays: The three latter were also sent to the House of Correction, there to remain six Months at hard Labour.

Gloucester, March 19. We hear that Mr. Wallen, late of Hindon in Wilts, Father of Mrs. Mapp the famous Bone-setter, is removed to Froome in Somersetshire, where he hath already performed several extraordinary Cures.

The first Quality. No Words can sufficiently express its Virtues; for it is not of the Nature of Paint, which puts a unnatural Glare on the Skin; but is a Remedy that, its Use, really gives a Lustre to the most Beautiful, by the fine Features of the Face, and is so safe, not having the least Grain of Mercury in it, that it may be taken inwardly, and if mingled to, is really good against Vapours.

It infallibly kill Worms in the Face, takes away Fresh Spots, Wrinkles Pits, or Marks of the Small-Pox, and alway cures any Defects in the Face, giving a charming young Lustre and fine Air to the Features, to Admiration.

As for such Persons as are of a swarthy Complexion, or tanned with any disagreeable Redness, Roughness, Moppy Heats, or the like, it is not to be parallel'd; for it immediately smooths, clears, plumps, nourishes, and whitens the Face to the last Degree, and makes those Persons who before looked haggard and old, to look young, beautiful, and fair, and thot, it far exceeds any thing that was ever yet known, made publick, for clearing and beautifying the Skin.
